Dear Ben

We had understood from your prior messages that Mr. Karli would appear without being compelled to testify, and were surprised and disappointed by your sudden reversal of position.

We can discuss a declaration but cannot defer formal process to secure Mr. Karli's appearance.

Will you please provide us with Mr. Karli's address, or agree to accept service of the attached subpoena for a remote deposition?

Regards,

Steve

Dear Steve,

After further consultation with our client in light of the FBI documents that you kindly provided, Mr. Karli will not volunteer for a deposition or interview in this matter.

If you have specific facts that you want him to verify and wish to provide us a draft declaration, we will review the draft and consider that possible approach.

Best regards,

Ben

Dear Ben,

Thanks for your message.

The depositions to date have been conducted remotely by Zoom videoconference. A Golkow litigation team has been handling the arrangements. They can fill you in on the technical details. The Zoom link is sent to all the participants in advance of the deposition. A technician handles the exhibits remotely, shares them with the lawyers on a separate platform, and with the witness on the Zoom platform.

Kind regards,

Steve

Dear Steve,

I did have an opportunity to review the FBI documents, and thank you again for sending them.

I am working on getting available dates, and expect to provide several to you shortly.

Could you please remind me about the logistical details of the deposition? I assume it would take place via videoconference or teleconference? It would help to have some lead time if I need to work with Mr. Karli to install and test any particular software or technology.

Best regards,

Ben
